

Joyce is responsible for the management and maintenance of IT equipment and network components in the IAHR Beijing Office.

Joyce graduated from HOHAI University in 2005, and then she joined IWHR. Her major is computer science and technology. During her work, she completed a master degree in software engineering.

Joyce has worked on the research of the computer monitoring system of hydropower station for six years, and accumulated plenty of practical experience in her work. Before joining IAHR, She worked for three years in the Comprehensive Management Department where she was responsible for external and internal communication and coordination.