

Sally joined IAHR in 2014 as Administrative Officer for IAHR Beijing Office. She is responsible for internal and external communication, activities organization and day-to-day administrative affairs.

Sally is a graduate in Public Management from Renmin University in China and she also holds a Master degree in Economics. Before joining IAHR, she worked for the Research Center for Sustainable Hydropower Development, IWHR and was mainly engaged in scientific research on hydropower sustainability assessment, CSR of hydropower industry, policy and standard of sustainable hydropower development and so on. She once took a part-time job in China National Office of International Hydropower Association (IHA), and worked in IHA Central Office in London for two months in 2013.