

Jenny is a graduate in Business Administration, a major which closely aligned to her interest in management and business. After graduating she went to study Finance management and got a master degree in UK for one year in order to expand her horizon and get more knowledge.

Since November 2014 she worked as an intern in IWHR to deal with administrative affairs of international travel and visit. Jenny accumulated both academic knowledge in administrative management at university and practical experience during her internship career in IWHR. Although she is young, she has great enthusiasm for work and is always willing to learn.
